Fae Wiedenhoeft Castle Walls

With dreamy textures, a velvet voice, and the echoes of Celtic winds, the new release from, award winning, songwriter, Fae Wiedenhoeft, will pull at your heart, sing to you of sweet sadness, and remind you that all is not lost.

Many across the globe revere Fae Wiedenhoeft's traditional sounding compositions and powerful contemporary pieces. She and her band SeaStar have enjoyed seven successful years of playing across the US, Canada, Ireland, Turkey, Scotland, and, most recently, Poland. The new record, Castle Walls, is composed of some of her earliest works, traditional pieces that she adores, and a few of her latest tales. Like a castle wall, the record contains some foundational songs that Fae performed very early in her career. Stone by stone, story after story, the journey continued. Mastered by Seattle legend, Chris Hanzsek and recorded at Four Lumen Studio in Kirkland, Washington, Fae crossed the Atlantic four times during the recording process. The record and arrangements seemed to be seasoned by her travels. The echoes of castle winds mingled with the tunes from little birds in central Europe. From the majestic to the down trodden, Fae wove together the threads of her travels into a colourful tapestry of voice, guitar, and dreamy landscapes. Castle Walls is a fine example of a songwriter's journey through mystery, history, love, and loss.

Fae's love of musical storytelling is only surpassed by her desire to share it with others. Whether it's a small house concert or a large concert hall, Fae will invite you in, sing to you a tale, and make it feel as if she is singing just to you.
